Dear Ian, Ian

Thank you are in order for your significant role in the February 17, World Languages Colloquium. The Casper meeting brought together junior high, senior high, community college, and university colleagues for a productive and upbeat day. You have been an enthusiastic and thoughtful contributor to the trifold chart revision project. I cannot thank you enough for that. Stronger relationships across Wyoming's secondary and postsecondary institutions have a big payoff for students. Some of these same thoughts are reflected in feedback comments we collected at the end of the day:

Love these meetings.

Times set aside such as today are important for networking and having these conversations.

Students' effective transition from high schools to college. The potential to be able to work more closely with my higher-level colleagues.

Thank you, Ian. You have been a wonderful collaborator and colleague!

Sincerely,

Audrey Kleinsasser, Professor and Director
